Probability of Yellow Fever on the Atlantic Coast.

Views of Dr. Turner of the National Board of Health - Danger in New Orleans-Good Sanltary Condition of the Mississippi Valley-Washington a Fearfully Dirty City - Quarantine.

A sprig from THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN staff overshadowed Dr. Turner's sanctum like a green bay tree, so to speak, before that gentleman departed from the city, and ap-plied the pumping process. The doctor "caved"

Tell THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN, Doctor, said that journal's representative, "what is this trouble about your appropriation for quar-office and other purposes."

"No trouble at all," auswered the doctor. The question is whether the balance of the The question is whether the balance of the last appropriation now remaining on hand can be used in addition to the one just made for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1881. The national beard of health claims that the new appropriation is additional to the balance of the old. It is not at all, as some people have supposed, a question of anticipating the appropriation for the coming year. We expect a decision from the first comptroller on this subject to morrow. Viewed from our standards.

"Nothing to speak of. There were some sporadic cases in New York, accidentally inorted, but not likely the present season to be not on the market as a commodity hable to quoted at popular prices."

But the Mississippi valley?"
There is danger there."

"There is danger there."
"General or local?"
"Conflued to New Orleans, I think. That city is in a very fifthy condition, and the prople seem unable or unwilling to appreciate their danger. In all probability there will be yellow fever in Orleans, virulent in energy and epidemic in character, before the end of four weeks. Other cities, however, will know it before we do. There is great commercial rivally between New Orleans and Gaiveston for examide, and the moment yellow fever r example, and the moment yellow fever taks out in New Orleans the Galveston peole will know it and will enforce a quarantine gainst the Crescent city before the click of he telegraph can convey the information of he fever to Washington."

" How is the saultary condition of the cities and towns in the Mississippi basin?" "Our reports indicate a good condition broughout the basin except in New Orleans The sewerage system adopted in Memphis under the direction of the national board of health will accountish much good. There are over forty miles of sewerage in good working order there. There is first a system of house sewerage, then a sub-soil sewerage, while the surface drains take off the surplus vator. Our quarantine system is appreciated a the Mississippi valley, and generally com-nended. There is not a stemmest or railroad nan west of Pitisburg that does not approve t. By the end of this month, certainly by the 4th of July, we shall have extended the spection system all down the river."
"To come nearer home doctor, is there any obtainity of the fever breaking out in Washington this year?

"Well, you can judge for yourself. We are sandwicked between two very fifthy cities, Ballimore on the north, and Norfolk on the south. This year is the cycle in which yellow fever may be expected on the Atlantic coast between Charleston and New York. Now, if they get the fever in Norfolk, which is probable, it is more than probable that it will be carried to Ballimore, and next to impossible carried to Ballimore, and next to impossible of the fever and next to impossible carried to Ballimore, and next to impossible of the fever and next to imposs the fever and next to be fev able, it is more than probable that it will be carried to Baltimore, and next to impossible to keep it from being brought here. And Washington, despite all efforts to effect a contrary condition, and in the teeth of any detail thereof, is a fearfully dirty city. Let any man carefully inspect this city, and he will find plague spots scattered thickly all over its surface. There is no use blinking at the essays and letters would have done credit to the prophet of evil."

In colored schools so ably conducted by Joseph H. Voorhees and his assistant, Miss F. J. Smith, took a new departure and heid their closing exercises last evening. The spacious school room was filled to overflowing, many more being in the yard anable to gain even standing room inside. The proficiency displayed by the schoolars was truly remarkable; there is a fear to be comidered to prophet of evil."

THE CRIMINAL COURT.

The Vacancies on the Juries Filled and the Organization Completed. The criminal court was in session a short time yesterday morning, Justice MacArthur presiding, in the absence of Justice James, who was engaged in the general term. The time of the court was occupied in completing the organization of the juries and arranging for beginning the active work of the June term. The mersial returned the following to fil the vacancies on the grand jury: William H. Morrison, Charles R. Donglass, James E. Nereis, William A. Hughes, Samuel Opdyke, Daniel Turner and Albert G. Hall, who were sworn on their coir dire. Mr. W. Scott Schew was excused from service on the jury, as there was no one to be found answering that name, and Mr. W. Scott Chew was appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. William H. Morrison was appointed foreman of the jury, and the organization being flux complete. Judgo MacArthur proceeded to address them upon the duties of a grand jury. He cautioned them to find indictments upon the cyclence before them, and not upon suspicion. He ad-vised the jary to lister, to no private appli-ations for redress or personal priovances, but to refer all such any lications to the District attomey, who will present the question to them in proper form about occasion justify it. He charged them especially in regard to the ject to-morrow. Viewed from our standpoint, we cannot anticipate any other than a decision in accordance with our claims. Although, of course, we do not know positively about it.

"That question being off my mind, let me get rid of another. Is there any yellow fever in the country at mesont?"

Weinristly, the 7th inst. The following were drawn to fill the vacancies on the petit jury: Robert C. Douglass, Charles Ludington, James Storum, Warren P. Warson, John Hopp, William F. Thomas and John E. F. Carring, Several cases on the assignment were called, but as they were not ready for trial the court adjourned until this margine.

Closing of the Public Schools-The New

Episcopal Chapel. To the Editor of The National Republican: Sin: Another school year has drawn to close. The pleasant smiles now to be found on the faces of the children appear to indicate that these periods bring joy and gladness to the hearts of the rising generation. The progress made in our schools this year has been highly satisfactory; in many respects hey are superior to any in the country. A he beginning of the term it was deemed ad risable that the parents should be called to gether at least once each month for consulta-tion with the templets and school others These meetings were always well attended and have been productive of much good by thundating the punds to more active study, mercased anxiety to excel in the exumina-tions, a desire to attend school regularly, and teachers' record books; besides all this, the parents have been led to see the importance of supplying their children with books, and for the first time in the history of our schools no child has been in attendance without a full supply as prescribed by existing rules. The white schools, in charge of Mrs. E. A. Voorices and Miss Sarah S. Smith, were closed in a pleasing manner, the festivities terminat-incrs. I do not wish, however, to be considered a prophet of evil."

"When do you start on your inspection trip?"

"To-morrow."

Whereupon The Republican dismissed the doctor to his peaceful dreams and invaced the repose of First-Comptroller Porter. That gentleman gracefully awaited the quentloning which was put about his decision on the appropriation for the national heard of health, and replied that he had not made any decision, but would probably make one to-day.
